The Hum

Submitted by Jeanne McCarthy

Chase sat up in bed. It was going to be another sleepless night. He shook his head back and forth and lightly rapped it. Something had to stop the humming, but what? No sense in telling his parents; they couldn't hear it. He knew he wasn't the only one who could. A few of the kids at school mentioned it and he suspected there were more. Only some could hear the hum, but who knew why? Or what it was?

He remembered hearing of the phenomena going back several years. His grandfather mentioned when he was a boy there was a hum in the woods and it was considered supernatural, but all that talk was hogwash, he said. A kid did go into the woods one night long ago at dusk, and he never returned. He was never found, just totally disappeared. Of course it was assumed he was abducted and probably killed. But Chase thought otherwise, and that was what stopped him from going into the woods to investigate the hum himself.

One year his father said it was the cicadas. They come and do the hum every seven years. That wasn't it, though, Chase tried to tell him. Wrong year. But he gave up telling his parents. They were exasperated about his talk of the hum and told him, "For gosh sakes, Chase! Just ignore it!" More useless advice.

He looked out the window at pure darkness, the only light being the sliver of moon over the abandoned factory building in the distance. He often wondered if it came from there; was something in the building making the noise? But no, it was clearly in the woods and not near the old buildings.

He put on earphones to see if he could muffle the sound. Nope. He tried music and that worked a little, but not entirely. He couldn't concentrate. Sometimes the hum got louder and woke him up like it did tonight. He needed to call a friend, but who do you call at 2:15 am? The Samaritans, maybe, he thought. They have signs that say "Need to talk to someone?" But he was sure they didn't mean something like this. So he didn't pick up the phone.

The alarm clock sounded. Bonk, bonk, bonk, bonk! Chase sat up from the slump he had ended up in by the window. It was daylight and promised to be a clear day. He couldn't hear the hum. It came mostly at night in the darkness, but it could happen anytime. He never knew and it often surprised him, though he wondered why. It was worsening.

Two of his classmates were talking and laughing outside the cafeteria. Chase approached one and said "Hummmmm". Ted "hummmmed" back, and both laughed.

"You hear it too?" the third kid said. Chase didn't know this kid.

Ted confirmed all three could hear the hum, though not at this moment. They assumed the third boy, Julian, heard it the same time they did. Everyone who could hear it experienced it at the same time for some reason. More evidence that it meant something and was directed at them.

So the decision was made. Tonight, they go in the woods. None of the three would admit how afraid he was, but Chase knew he was and suspected they were, too. Of course, he'd say, "No, I'm not afraid," if asked.

"Maybe we're just crazy" Ted commented.

"Yeah, my mother wanted me to go to the head doctor," said Julian.

"No way!!" laughed Ted.

The three parted ways and planned to meet in the evening to proceed with their investigation, if they still dared. All three hoped the other would back out so he wouldn't have to be the coward or admit defeat. That is probably what kept them going.

Darkness fell and at about 7:00 pm, Chase heard a knock at his front door. It sounded like a slapping noise, not an actual knock, which gave him the shivers. His parents didn't hear it, and that had been the plan from the beginning. No one could know what the boys were doing. He knew his parents would try to stop them. Ted's probably wouldn't, but he still had to deal with his own who were always over him, hovering. They meant well but were suffocating him out of love.

Heading to the woods they all felt the hum louder and heavier. They looked around and at the sky. Nothing seemed amiss.

What the hell?!" Ted yelped. He felt a sudden pinch like a bug had bitten him, but no itch or sting. At that moment the humming stopped – for him. He slapped at his legs, his arms, his torso, then his head. The other two looked at him unsure what to think.

"Something bit me," he explained.

Relieved, Chase and Julian mustered their courage and the three entered the dirt trail that wound a footpath through the trees. They felt someone – or something – was watching them, but no one and nothing out of the ordinary was in sight. Not even an animal of any sort. Ted thought he heard an owl; the others didn't.

It was silent except for a faint buzzing in their heads.

"It's stopping," Julian announced, looking uneasy. "It never does that."

Ted agreed, but added that his own sound had stopped entirely. He just didn't mention he was certain that there had been no insect – but what was it then?

Julian jumped.

"Cut it out!" he yelled, glaring at Chase and Ted.

"What?!" they yelled back at him.

"Messing with my hair, you know what!" Julian hissed. He hated for anyone to touch his thick head of hair and always combed it just right. He'd often been teased about using hairspray, but he did not even use gel. No additives, he said.

Suddenly all three felt disoriented. Ted's hum was back and louder than ever. They did not know which way to turn or walk. It seemed the trail went in all directions, like a wagon wheel one minute and two steps later it was mostly gone entirely. The trees were thick, filling in the whole forest with little room to move ahead.

Chase leaned against a tree, breathing heavily. He was afraid, but of course would not admit that.

"Want to go back?" Julian sneered. But how could they? They could barely see.

There was a sudden thump and a muffled yelp. Julian and Ted turned fast and felt as if they were falling. Julian felt faint and neither boy could run. Their legs felt sluggish and cemented in the ground, though their bodies felt ready to detach and disintegrate. A loud siren noise was coming at them, but both knew it was within them, not anything in the air itself.

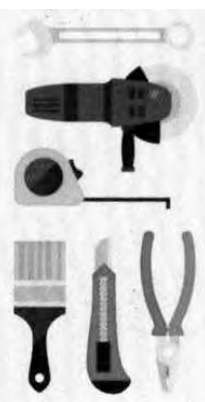

Both realized at once that Chase was gone.

The thump, the hum, what? They spun around trying to make sense and find sight of Chase. They could hear the thump louder now, thump, thump like feet on a paved walkway. But there was no pavement here. Julian thought he heard a burp.

"A bird or squirrel?" Ted squeaked, trying to convince his self it was so.

Not another soul was in sight, animal or otherwise.

Ted and Julian ran as fast as they could, bumping into one tree and then another. They were too afraid to even call out to Chase. The only goal was to get out of the forest as they hoped Chase had done.

Neither boy knew how he got out. It was a sudden blackness, all thought and consciousness gone. They recalled being in the woods, but not how they got out or how long it took. Chase was gone. His mom called their parents who then said they had not seen him. Ted's parents asked him if he had, but Ted did not recall if Chase had been with them or not. Julian looked like he'd seen a ghost. Or worse.

Neither ever saw or heard from their childhood friend again. The police and others looked, but nothing was ever found. No leads, no evidence, no sign of anything.

The hum was gone, too.

Robinson has written five novels, including a well-received biography of Georgia O'Keeffe, and received a Guggenheim Fellowship for Creative Arts award for her work. Her latest novel, Dawson's Fall, explores the relationship her own southern ancestors had with their house slaves, white neighbors, and with their personal efforts to protect and defend their way of life in South Carolina while still maintaining their humanity.

Robinson's presentation on October 29 at the Mattapoisett Public Library, part of the Purrington Lecture Series, touched on her five-year journey to understand how a twig of her family tree headed by Francis Warrington Dawson held onto the tradition of owning slaves while at the same time, as she put it, "being a man of principles." She said she was surprised to learn about Dawson because her ancestry included the author's great-great-great-aunt Harriet Beecher Stowe, the American abolitionist and author of Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Set in the 1800's, we are told that Dawson emigrated from England during a time when the island nation was sending men across the Atlantic to help shore up the Confederate Army. The country's economic interests, especially in the production of American cotton, were highly valued. Business partners were concerned that if slavery collapsed, so too would their fortunes.

Dawson founded the Charleston newspaper The News and Courier, and from that platform he wrote about the violence and brutality of slavery and criticized the belief system that placed Caucasians as the superior race. Robinson said she found "a man of principle" in the pages of Dawson's newspaper and his daily journals.

"He stood up against injustice," said Robinson. "He knew the south was afflicted with violence because slavery is based in violence." His views set him against the majority of white citizens, his friends, and neighbors.

The novel begins at the end of the Civil War, a time when plantation owners and those whose fortunes depended on cheap enslaved labor faced losing everything. With their defeat, a visceral threat of violence pervaded Southern life, especially after the Union troops returned north.

"The more I read, the more I found topical themes," said Robinson. Drawing a linear line from history to the present, Robinson said the modern phenomenon of American gun culture started in 1876 with the arming of former slaves by the Union to create militias. "Whites wouldn't join militias because of the presence of black former slaves with guns." Instead, she said, whites created their own militias.

"[The South] has 260 years of violence," said Robinson. "It became a way of life."

Reading from her novel, Robinson tells the story of one day when the people of a primarily black town were celebrating the Fourth of July. On the edge of town, they were being watched by armed white men. The tension in those passages was real.

Beyond the ever-present and persistent threat of violence, Robinson's novel, she explained, discusses the complexity and duality that exists in the human mind.

"Everyone benefited from slavery," she said. Even those who didn't own slaves benefited from their labor, she said.

Religion, Robinson said, also played a role in how seemingly "decent white folks" could engage in slavery. She pointed to Biblical passages that spoke to the enslaving of people as an acceptable practice, what Southern whites eagerly interpreted as permission to enslave one race for the betterment of another.

"If you protested against the Bible, that was blasphemy," said Robinson. "They were left with being good stewards of the people they owned," she concluded.

Robinson considers her ancestors as kind and generous people, they too owned slaves, she said. She spoke of their benevolence in one breath, while in the next the fact that they owned human beings. From that context comes the ambivalence of finding oneself defending family in spite of their otherwise unacceptable behavior in history.

"Everyone has deep connections to ancestors," said Robinson, "[a] loyalty to family... I had decent family, but they were complicit."

The author had a treasure trove of material to wade through and said that she had not set out to write about slavery, but that is where her years of research led her. She read passages from her novel in a voice that added emotion to words that are already inherently powerful. Robinson is a writer whose descriptive text is painted in layers inside the mind of the reader, resulting in strong images and a deep immersion into the story at hand.

Robinson held back, as any author would, on divulging too much of the plot, and revealed nothing of the ending that gave rise to the book's title (hint: Dawson's Fall is not a place). As any good storyteller is wont to do, she left her audience with a thirst to know more. At the end of the presentation, half of those in attendance lined up to buy the book.

Date Set for Pickles Criminal Trial

By Jean Perry

A date has been set for the criminal trial of Ray Pickles, the former executive director of the Carver, Marion, Wareham Regional Refuse Disposal District (CMWRRDD), accused of stealing over $610,000 from the District over a period of six years.

After one final pre-trial conference on February 3, the trial by jury will begin on February 24 at 9:00 am at the Plymouth County Superior Court in Plymouth.

18, 2019 after a joint investigation of the Office of the Inspector General and the Attorney General's Office.

He was charged with six counts of larceny.

Pickles, the sole signatory on two District bank accounts, allegedly wrote checks out to himself for personal use, and is accused of establishing another two secret checking accounts at two separate banks in the District's name to deposit checks intended for the District. Pickles allegedly used those funds to make payments on his personal credit cards and make cash withdrawals for personal use.

Pickles is also accused of submitting invoices to the District for work he did not perform, as well as charging the District for fuel for his private boat.

The board that oversees the CMWRRDD filed civil charges for fraud against Pickles, his wife Diane Bondi-Pickles, 67, Pickles' shell corporation Moss Hollow Management, and former CMWRRDD board chairman Robert Tinkham, Jr., 58, who was also the health agent for the Town of Carver.

Tinkham also faces two criminal charges of larceny and presenting a false claim for allegedly stealing $65,000 in District funds while serving as board chairman, which Pickles allegedly paid to Tinkham from phony invoices for work that Tinkham never performed.

Pickles was the executive director for the CMWRRDD for nearly 45 years since its conception in 1973. He was also executive secretary for the Town of Marion for 29 years from 1972 until his retirement in 2001, and served as the town clerk for several years until his resignation on September 3, 2019.

Not to Slay a Dragonfly

By George B. Emmons

Fossils of dragonflies date back to 300 million years on Earth, and today the insect is found on every continent of the world.

Using the name "dragon" for an insect may have come from the myth that they were once dragon-like creatures during the time of the dinosaurs. In Japan, the Samurai warriors saw them as warrior spirits of agility, power, and victory. In China, they were a symbol of prosperity, harmony, and domestic fortune as food. To Native Americans, they were a totem of success, speed, and purpose of flight, as if a living spirit of the wind itself.

In New England, four indigenous species prevail along waterside coastlines of both salt and fresh water inlets, lakes, and ponds. The largest, about two-and-a-half inches long, is the Green Darner dragonfly in my illustration about to eat a summer mosquito. Mosquitos are the favorite prey of the dragonfly's insect diet, making them both beneficial and detrimental as infectious disease carriers to humans.

The dragonfly has four wings, each of which can be folded back and adjusted to fly in any one of six different directions evasively, and back and forth like a darning needle. Amish farmers warned children telling lies that their lips could be sewn up by what was called the Devil's dragonfly.

There is a similar but smaller cousin to the dragonfly, the damselfly, with swept back wings that are less effective in predation.

Dragonflies mate in flight, holding each other in a circular embrace from head to toe, flying in tandem for insemination and propagation. The female then will lay several thousand fertilized eggs on or near the surface of the water, usually on a split leaf of an underwater plant. They will, in about a week, begin to hatch as aquatic nymphs called larvae, not to take flight until the water purity conditions are favorable. Consequently, most of the dragonfly's life is initially underwater.

Now the autumn migration of adults has already been orchestrated, like waving a magic wand of a frost line southward along the Atlantic flyway. Like the Monarch butterfly, the dragonfly uses the position of the sun in the sky as a guide, with an inner clock to compensate its position in the Earth's rotation.

Dragonflies also stage up at Cape May, New Jersey to cross the Chesapeake on their way to Florida and beyond. They are estimated to move in clouds of hundreds of thousands for safety in numbers in passage.

Like Rachael Carson's book on the detriments to the environment, Silent Spring, intended to save the hatching of bird eggs from sterilization of insecticides, so may my article appeal to you as a reader to encourage environmentally-friendly means of addressing issues of nature that face us, such as mosquito control; for example, the effective method of supplying thousands of dragonfly

Selectmen Appoint New Registrar of Voters

Marion Board of Selectmen

By Jean Perry

The Marion Board of Selectmen on October 28 appointed Ami Milano as a registrar of voters during a special morning meeting to fill the position left vacant for some time now.

Since at least 2015 when Assistant Town Clerk Lissa Magauran was appointed as a registrar, only two of three registrar positions were filled.

Richard Giberti served alongside Magauran and was reappointed in 2018.

The urgency to fill the vacancy increased as a result of the recent appointment of the assistant town clerk to town clerk, as the town clerk is automatically considered a registrar of voters; however, three registrars of voters should be appointed in addition to the town clerk.

Magauran's promotion resulted in a second registrar vacancy.

In a follow-up with The Wanderer, Town Administrator Jay McGrail said Magauran had recently reached out to Milano to see if she might be interested in filling the position.

Now, McGrail said, "There is currently the need for an additional registrar, which will be advertised soon."

The duties of the registrars of voters include registering new voters, maintaining accurate voter registration lists, accepting nomination papers, processing absentee ballots, and conducting elections.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the Marion Board of Selectmen will be on November 5 at 7:00 pm at the Marion Town House.

Fourteen Filings Heard in Record Time

Mattapoisett Conservation Commission

By Marilou Newell

The agenda was nearly three and a half pages long as the Mattapoisett Conservation Commission gathered at Town Hall on October 28 to hear 14 filings. Many in attendance and a couple in the commission believed it would be a very long night indeed, with nearly every chair in the conference room filled and another half-dozen people waiting outside in the hallway for their turn. That would not be the case; everything was thoroughly reviewed and dispatched in 90 minutes.

The filing that took the most time to review was a Notice of Intent for Nicholas Christy, 20 Howard Beach, for the construction of a single-family house on the barrier beach.

Representing Christy was Richard Rheume of Prime Engineering who explained that there had been a structure on a concrete pad as recently as 2012, but that the new design would impact 4,163 feet of barrier beach. He said that the new home would feature breakaway walls around the pillars that would support the elevated home and that all FEMA regulations would be followed. Rheume said plans included bringing in beach sand to raise the elevation under the home by four feet and the planting of dune grass.

Commission member Trevor Francis said, "I'm having a hard time seeing all that sand."

After 27 years, it's time to say good-bye and thank you!

Chairman Mike King concurred, saying that storms would eventually flush the fill into the surrounding marshlands.

Then there arose the question of whether or not the lot being discussed was considered a buildable lot by the Building Department.

Laura Hartnett, 8 Island View Avenue, said that the Building Department told her that the property was not buildable. She questioned how a home would be serviced by freshwater given that a well would be needed on a barrier beach.

Christy said he had also spoken to the Building Department before engaging in an understanding that he would purchase the property to ensure he could, in fact, build a home on the lot. He said he had also confirmed that with the Conservation Commission.

King said to Hartnett, "I'm concerned you were given information from the Building Department that it was unbuildable."

The issue of freshwater was discussed with Rheaume explaining how a freshwater system could be installed, one that would slowly elevate freshwater located below saltwater in a "sipping" fashion.

But King said he wanted a written opinion from the Building Department and town counsel before moving forward with the hearing.

The hearing was continued until November 25.

Another Notice of Intent filing generating discussion was one filed by Ronald and Cynthia Axelrod, 14 Shore Drive, for the upgrading of an existing septic system.

Conservation Agent Elizabeth Leidhold noted in her review of the site the presence of hydraulic soils in a lot that otherwise contained 95-percent uplands, according to engineer David Davignon.

Leidhold also commented that, in her estimation, a significant amount of invasive species had been removed from the property without overview by the commission.

But King disagreed, saying that he found very little area of disturbance. King further supported the project because it would improve a septic system, thereby providing better protection to wetlands.

Francis was reticent to condition the project, saying, "I haven't had a chance to go there," and thought wetlands flagging needed to be checked.

King said, "The septic outweighs any movement of wetland flagging," and said he was in favor of the project to get the new septic in place as soon as possible.

After the vote, Francis' 'nay' was overruled by three 'ayes'.

In other business, negative determinations of acceptability were granted to Ron Belida, 4 David Street, to repair an existing deck; Kenneth Ackerman, 4 Grove Avenue, for the construction of a new deck and enclosing of an existing deck space; Edward Van Keuren, 4

How does chiropractic care help seniors?

Researchers for Topics in Clinical Chiropractic found that for seniors age 75 and over, "Chiropractic users were less likely to have been hospitalized, less likely to have used a nursing home, more likely to report a better health status, more likely to exercise vigorously, and more likely to be mobile in the community. In addition, they were less likely to use prescription drugs."

Further supporting this improvement in quality of life, a study published in the Journal of Manipulative and Physiological Therapeutics found that Medicare patients who had regular chiropractic care "reported making only half the annual number of visits to medical providers compared with the national average for people age 65 years and over."

A Notice of Intent filed by the Town of Mattapoisett for the construction of a new emergency egress drive from the existing police station out to Route 6 was approved.

A Notice of Intent filed by Andrew Stackpole, Noyes Avenue, for the construction of a two-story single-family home was approved.

Also receiving approval and order of conditions was Request for an Amended Order of Conditions filed by Monarch Trust for property located on Pine Street that granted a change in the footprint of a new home, driveway, and grading plan.

Mark Kwatcher, 22 Fieldstone Drive, filed a Notice of Intent to extend an existing lawn within 25 feet of a bordering vegetated wetland that was represented by Jeff Youngquist of Outback Engineering.

Liz Waring of 24 Fieldstone Drive came forward with concerns that grade changes at this location would further impact water draining onto her property. She said that drainage issues had long been problematic, especially in her backyard.

Youngquist couldn't answer why that would be the case, given drainage systems in the area of her home were intact. But he assured Waring that the lawn expansion would not contribute further to those issues and may, in fact, improve matters. He said he would make a site visit to Waring's property to try and determine what might be occurring. The project for lawn expansion at 22 Fieldstone Drive was approved.

Certificates of Compliance were issued to Tucker Aufranc, 27 Hollywoods Road, and Douglas McGee, 142 Fairhaven Road.

The next meeting of the Mattapoisett Conservation Commission is scheduled for November 25 at 6:30 pm in the Mattapoisett Town Hall conference room.

ZBA Focuses On Relief, Not Neighborhood Dispute

Rochester Zoning Board of Appeals

By Jean Perry

No one could argue that, of all the Snow's Pond Road variance requests to ever come before the Rochester Zoning Board of Appeals, Jake Goyette's has been the most controversial. But on October 24 with town counsel on hand, the ZBA granted Goyette his variance to build his single-family house on the unaccepted town road, despite a contentious but unrelated neighborhood dispute over access that remains unresolved.

The board had Town Counsel Blair Bailey present to help it untangle the issues from the non-issues pertaining to Goyette's application. Supportive neighbors and Goyette's attorney argue that Goyette's variance should be granted like all the other Snow's Pond Road houses received over the years. After all, it was granted years ago, but then expired in 2012. Neighbors opposed to the variance, however, argue that until access to a right of way is restored, Goyette should be denied the variance.

Goyette's application, like the rest of his neighbors' variance applications in the past, requests permission to build a house on property that lacks frontage on an accepted town road. The last time the board opened Goyette's public hearing, ZBA members chose to continue until they could research prior Planning Board decisions where the Planning Board weighed-in on the adequacy of Snow's Pond Road.

Bailey said he found two such instances, one of them an Approval Not Required application from 1990 that the board granted. By signing that, Bailey said, "The Planning Board effectively weighed-in on the adequacy of the road up to the point when the split (in Snow's Pond Road) was made." Having said that, he continued Bailey, "I did speak with the chairman of the Planning Board and he agreed with that interpretation."

Although the ZBA ultimately granted Goyette the variance, it came after over an hour of discussion that often veered into the gate that Goyette's direct abutters – his parents – erected to block all access to a contested right of way across their property.

On behalf of Lisa Holden, a Snow's Pond Road resident and seller of the property to Goyette, Attorney Marc Deshaies argued that granting a variance to Goyette would be "denigrating from the bylaw" that a house has to be on a public way or shown on a plan approved by the Planning Board.

Deshaies was referring to the drive that Goyette's parents have blocked with a gate. He said that he traced the right of way all the way back to 1811.

Linda Rounseville, a resident of Snow's Pond Road, opposed the variance because of the gate on Goyette's parents' property, as well as the three-panel stockade fence that sits in the middle of the way on Goyette's property.

Goyette's mother, Bonnie Goyette, the owner of the gate blocking the access, clarified that the gate does not belong to Jake, and also pointed out that Lisa Holden, one of the principal opponents of Goyette's variance, years ago received the very same variance Goyette now seeks. Holden's and the others' variances were all "granted within 10 minutes," Bonnie Goyette said. She said 10 other houses all have zero feet of frontage on an accepted town road. "What is the difference between Jake's application and Lisa's application other than the name at the top of the application?"

ZBA Chairman David Arancio said all sides have a right to speak at a public hearing, adding that he is "a process guy" and that he was also on the board when the original variance was granted.

Lauren Francis said she performed the title examination and claimed that the contested right of way was originally named East Snow's Pond Road and recorded in the past. She said the problem here today was the blocked access.

"The issue that I have here is that's not the problem here today," said Bailey.

The ZBA cannot decide someone's property rights, he said, adding that although he understands the issue of the gate, "That's not anywhere near this board... It's not in front of this board. I sympathize and I understand, but there's nothing this board can do to address this problem."

According to a letter submitted by Holden, Goyette's parents put the gate up to block traffic because their grandchildren cross back and forth between the two Goyette family properties.

"They have caused a detriment to their neighbors as well as a safety concern in that area," wrote Holden.

Goyette's attorney, however, rose to be one of the last to speak about the blocked access, as Arancio grew tired of the matter he now perceived as unrelated to the application. According to the attorney, Goyette was misled to believe that the original variance was still in effect when he signed the purchase and sale agreement with Holden. He said the variance was written into the deed and also the purchase and sale agreement, despite its expiration prior to the conveyance of the land.

"That is fraudulent," he stated. Furthermore, the gate is located on Goyette's parents' property, not his, and the stockade fence was put up because drivers would proceed down the right of way and then back up onto Goyette's land to turn around once they approached the fence. The application is solely for relief of the frontage, he reminded the board, not for access rights.

Once public comment was closed, ZBA member Richard Cutler read a statement he prepared on how he had voted for that original variance but did not support this latest application.

"At the time there was no discussion about the rights of others to pass," said Cutler. "Now [there] appears to be a controversy, indicating to me that there is some detriment to the public good."

"I don't see that," said ZBA member Don Spirlet. "To me, the detriment is the fence, the gate that they're talking about," which is on another's property. "I have no problem issuing this [variance]."

ZBA member Jeffrey Costa agreed, and chastised Goyette's opposition, saying, "Figure stuff out, neighborhood, and let the poor kid build his house."

ZBA member Davis Sullivan agreed with Cutler. When he voted for the first variance, there was no detriment to the public, he said. "But at this point, there is."

"Just to be clear," Bailey interjected, "the

"Still," said Cutler, "there's a lot more controversy associated with this piece of property than we've ever had on any other piece of property over on Snow's Pond Road."

"I don't disagree," said Bailey, "but what I'm saying is the question before the board is, does granting this relief do a detriment to the public good – that's the question, and the relief is the frontage on Snow's Pond Road."

"I just don't see how it... is detriment to the public good," said Arancio. "I have not heard one person talk about this application and him building a house in a

The vote was 4-1 with only Cutler opposing.

Also during the meeting, the board granted two variances to Mary and Michael Fitzgerald, Hiller Road, one to allow an accessory structure to exceed 1,000 square feet, and one to allow the accessory structure to be located in the front of the property. The couple also received a Special Permit to allow the structure to exceed the height of the principal structure.

The next meeting of the Rochester Zoning Board of Appeals is scheduled for November 14 at 7:15 pm at the Rochester Town Hall.

SRPEDD to Produce Housing Production Plan

Mattapoisett Planning Board

By Marilou Newell

The Mattapoisett Planning Board will be engaged in the mammoth task of writing a new Master Plan with the assistance of the Southeastern Regional Planning and Economic Development District (SRPEDD).

On October 29, Grant King, director of comprehensive planning for SRPEDD, presented the steps to be taken as the group studies data and engages community groups to flush out the needs of the seaside town, most notably, its housing needs.

King gave a short presentation that promised to provide the town with much needed information when assessing housing needs. The presentation touched on demographic findings, main barriers to affordable housing, and main strategies to pursue.

Mattapoisett applied for a District Local Technical Assistance grant to cover the costs of producing the plan, King stated. He said the completed housing production plan would focus on Chapter 40B housing in an effort to "gain more control over the Chapter 40B process and to create local champions for housing."

King said that the SRPEDD team would look at affordable housing from two perspectives – one with a small "a" and one with a capital "A"; the latter being more expensive homes.

Regarding the demographics, King presented data that demonstrated the aging of Mattapoisett and the shrinking of household sizes. The data found that 42.2 percent of residents are 65 years of age or older, up from 29.8 percent found in 2000. Another 22 percent of all households are single-person homes with half of that figure being 65 and older. Households with children 18 and younger came in at 24.9 percent of the whole, down 32 percent from 2000.

King said the major barrier in buying a home in Mattapoisett is cost. According to King, about 20 percent of the housing stock is seasonal, and there is very little in the way of multi-family units. He also commented that 54.7 percent of housing in town is single-family homes built prior to 1969. With housing that old, he said renovations would be costly and nearly impossible to qualify as affordable.

The data presented noted that an affordable price tag for a single-family unit stood at $252,300, while Mattapoisett's median sales price was $423,500 – a gap of $171,200.

Other barriers to affordable housing in Mattapoisett are its zoning and permitting regulations, King continued, adding that low availability of land zoned for multi-family or small-lot housing was another major barrier. He said that the team would “do a deep dive into zoning to propose changes ranging from new zones and language to tweaks,” which may assist in developing affordable units.

There apparently is also a lack of incentive for age-friendly, age-restricted developments, said King. He talked about developing zoning that could be put in place for “friendly” 40B units or other subsidized housing.

King seemed to be assuring the Planning Board when he said, “[Affordable] 40B doesn’t have to be cheap construction.” He said it could be aesthetically pleasing and designed to fit into the village feel of the town.

To get to the nuts and bolts of plan development and success, King suggested the establishment of local volunteer housing champions. He said it should be a dedicated group appointed by the Board of Selectmen to include members from the town’s Community Preservation Committee, Housing Authority, Planning Board, Council on Aging, and possibly local non-profits.

King urged that the town take a proactive approach to 40B housing, saying, “Many towns have had success by being involved.” He said his team would seek out municipal properties in town that might be suited to multi-unit construction or the possibility of partnerships with neighboring towns.

Once that the plan is produced, it would enjoy a five-year shelf life, said King.

As he drew his presentation to a close, King said that it was critical for the selectmen to be engaged in the plan, and he asked for assistance in getting a short meeting with them. Several Planning Board members said that presently, with only two selectmen and a town administrator about to retire, things were a bit tight. Planning Board Administrator Mary Crain said she would reach out to them on King’s behalf.

Planning Board member Karen Field wondered aloud at the wisdom of building more housing if the town’s overall population was shrinking and aging. She added, “The beauty of the town is it is little. Why density?”

King responded, “There are limitations in renovating existing homes to meet subsidized housing requirements,” and he continued, “In my judgment, you will get 40B in the future because you are under the 10-percent threshold for affordable housing.”

“It’s a catch-22 with aging population and young people who can’t afford to buy... and more people means more services,” said board member Janice Robbins. “We have to make a decision what we want. We could do nothing about 40B housing if we wanted to.” She said that some people don’t want any change in the community while others say “we should try to make things more diverse.”

King reiterated that by being involved, the town could have a great deal of say about what housing types it wanted.

“All long-range plans can do is show you what is possible,” said King.

Planning Board Chairman Tom Tucker said that it was important to engage the entire community and not just a few people. He said he wanted the plan to be a consensus.

King suggested a workshop to draw in as many voices as possible. According to King, the town needs 190 units of affordable housing to meet the 10-percent threshold. Impact analysis, however, was not part of the housing production plan.

Residents interested in reviewing the entire presentation can contact the Planning Board for a copy.

Earlier in the meeting, the Planning Board approved two Form-A Approval Not Required applications. One was filed by the Town of Mattapoisett for a small parcel located adjacent to the bike path, and the other was filed by David Duff for property located at 98A Mattapoisett Neck Road.

The board continued a Preliminary Subdivision

Plan filed by Jay and Julie Duker, 112 Aucoot Road, until November 18 with the caveat that it was the final continuance the board was willing to grant.

Also continued to November 18 was a discussion regarding the return of "Emergency Repair Work" funds specified in the covenant for the Villages at Mattapoisett.

The next meeting of the Mattapoisett Planning Board is scheduled for November 18 at 7:00 pm in the Town Hall conference room.

ConCom Approves NOI for Flood Zone Home

Marion Conservation Commission

By Jean Perry

The Marion Conservation Commission on October 23 granted approval for an elevated single-family house with garage and an accompanying extension of a boulder embankment, but not after a continuation from the previous hearing that had neighbors voicing their concerns about stormwater management and over-eradication of vegetation bordering the beach and an adjacent path.

On behalf of Laura and Frank Utano, 68 West Avenue, David Davignon presented the commission with the updated plans as requested, with enhanced stormwater measures to ensure stormwater would be redirected to the center of the Utanos' property and not neighboring yards.

Furthermore, the boundary of work for the vegetation removal would be clearly marked by siltation fencing.

The Utanos will be demolishing an existing cottage on the property that lies within the flood zone and the new single-family raised house will comply with FEMA flood regulations.

In other business, the Department of Environmental Protection approved the Notice of Intent filed by the Marion Conservation Commission to eradicate and manage invasive species at the stormwater management pond known as Sprague's Cove. The DEP determined that the work would not adversely affect the resource area.

Last year, Town Meeting approved the $15,100 cost of the three-year project that entails brush clearing during the first year, cutting and mowing the second year, and planting and seeding in the spring of the third year.

The commission issued a Negative 2 determination for the Request for Determination of Applicability filed by Monica Gracia, 28 Parkway Lane, to install a natural gas pipe using an open trench method.

The public hearing for the NOI filed by Kathleen Welch, 82 West Avenue, was continued until November 13.

Special Ed Director Appointed to Asst. Superintendent

Joint Meeting of the School Committees

By Jean Perry

Director of Student Services Michael Nelson, the head of the Special Education Department, was appointed to the new position of assistant superintendent of teaching, learning, and student services on October 23 during the joint meeting of the Old Rochester Regional School Committee and Superintendency Union #55.

Nelson will assume the vacancy left by Elise Frangos, the retired assistant superintendent of curriculum, instruction, and assessment.

The appointment was swiftly approved by the ORR School Committee, but was met with some opposition on the Superintendency Union side.

Rochester School Committee member Anne Fernandes asserted that the joint committees had agreed last year that school administrators would assume the professional development aspect of Frangos' position temporarily so that the assistant superintendent position could eventually be filled by whoever is appointed as the new superintendent.

"This is not about Mr. Nelson," said Fernandes. "Mr. Nelson is top notch. It's about the process that we had put into place months ago.

"I think the process should remain as it was stated the first time around and that the new superintendent do his or her own choosing," she said. "I think we should stick to the original plan."

Fernandes said she preferred the addition of the term "interim" in the motion to appoint Nelson to the assistant superintendent position, to which Superintendency Union and Rochester School Committee Chairman Sharon Hartley agreed.

"I would add that [Superintendent Doug White] had strongly stated to us... that we wait and allow the next superintendent to make the decision about an assistant superintendent," said Hartley.

Fernandes thought that making the position temporary "shows respect for the long and hard work that we made to creating the plan."

Nonetheless, both the ORR School Committee and the Superintendency Union voted in favor of appointing Nelson, 7-0 and 5-3, respectively.

"I appreciate the support of the committee and the superintendent and my colleagues," said Nelson, "and I will continue to serve the district to the best of my ability moving forward, so thank you very much."

The next joint meeting of the Old Rochester Regional School Committee and Superintendency Union #55 is scheduled for December 12 at 6:30 pm in the ORR Junior High School media room.

ORR High School MCAS Scores Soar

Old Rochester Regional School Committee

By Jean Perry

Old Rochester Regional High School Principal Mike Devoll was pleased to present the school's 2019 MCAS results to the ORR School Committee on October 23, scores that reflect significant improvement over last year's scores.

"I think we hit a homerun this year, as we thought we would," Devoll said. "I'm very proud of the work that was done."

The data clearly showed improvement, especially in the high school, despite the change from the traditional MCAS and the subsequent MCAS 2.0 that has evolved into the current standard, Next-Gen MCAS, as Superintendent Doug White explained.

"As you know, we are in a time of change with the state as far as MCAS," said White. "We've also changed what we identify as accountability factors, whether that be at the junior high school or the high school."

The accountability categories are scored from zero to four points, and each annual target is set by how students performed the prior year that determines the target percentage of improvement the school is expected to achieve the next year.

"It is a moving target," said White. "That target is always moving. As you do better, it gets harder to meet the target moving forward, per se."

Adding to the complexity, this was the first time students would take the science portion of the MCAS online instead of the paper and pencil version. Nonetheless, Devoll was able to proudly report that, overall, the school had had a banner MCAS year.

What stands out the most, Devoll said, are the notable improvements in student growth and achievement, especially in English Language Arts (ELA).

"These are the strongest growth scores that we have had in my career," said Devoll, reflecting on the overall ELA increase from a proficiency score of 45 percent in 2018 to 60 percent in 2019, and the 47-percent to 52-percent leap in Math proficiency over last year.

Grade 9 students scored an 83 percent in the science assessment compared to the 74 percent state average of students meeting or exceeding expectations in the subject.

In the realm of accountability, the school scored in the 65th percentile, a huge increase over last year's 38th percentile, meeting its target percentage.

"Tremendous improvement," said Devoll. "I think we can still push further with better attendance with this whole district adopting a new attendance policy."

The school did not score so well when it came to chronic absenteeism, a newer state measurement that deducts points for student absences. Furthermore, there are no longer excused absences in the state's absenteeism calculation, which has prompted the school to review its attendance policy to reflect the change.

Devoll said his greatest source of pride for the school is that leap in ELA and Math proficiency that puts the school 50 percent higher than the state average.

"Which is a major change from a year ago," said Devoll.

Devoll credits the Bulldog Block program initiated at the school that sets aside time for the lowest performing students to receive intensive instruction in areas of weakness and support in their current studies. From this, Devoll said, "I'm not surprised to see the increase in those students.

"I'm proud of the work that my teachers have done, and the students this past year did a great job," said Devoll.

Over in the junior high, Principal Silas Coellner was equally pleased with his students' MCAS performance.

"In my 10 years at the junior high, this is one of the best years that we've ever had," said Coellner.

The school's overall achievement made a huge jump from 25 percent to 82 percent, with growth reflecting an increase from 50 to 63 percent over last year.

"Lot of great improvement there," said Coellner. But the improvement in ELA, he said, "This is really the highlight of our performance in MCAS last [school] year."

Students overall scored higher in the area of ELA, but in Math, Coellner said, "Math wasn't quite as successful as ELA... They all went down just a little bit, but not, I wouldn't say, significant."

Further points of pride, Coellner said, include improvement for students with disabilities who exceeded the expected achievement targets in all three subject areas. And in science, all students have shown a marked improvement from 40 percent proficiency to 63 percent proficiency.

Coellner said the school's improved performance came from more robust skill development and curriculum support, similar to at the high school.

"Silas, these are really impressive results and it really shows all the great work you are doing in the junior high – and your staff,” said ORR School Committee member Heather Burke.

White said the plan for further improvement would focus on the rigor of the curriculum, “And also ensuring that we’re finding ways for growth for all students.”

The committee, pleased with the results, was quick to comment.

“We’ve heard so much criticism... from town officials, especially from Marion, that have openly criticized our performance,” said ORR School Committee Chairman Carey Humphrey.

“The bottom line is, this school district is providing an excellent education,” Humphrey said. “The data is here; it’s proven.”

“It speaks volumes of what’s happening in our schools,” said ORR School Committee member Michelle Smith.

In other business, the committee voted to accept the school athletic transportation bid received from Amaral Bus Company.

According to White, the district needed to change bus companies after the current company could no longer service after school and athletic bus services.

“We actually got a better rate for this coming year,” said White.

The three-year contract is for $115,000 for the first year, $119,000 for the second, and $120,000 for year three. White said the new contract will take three years to reach the rate the district pays its current bus company.

The next meeting of the Old Rochester Regional School Committee is scheduled for December 11 at 6:30 pm in the ORR Junior High media room.

their respective divisions.

The Cougars finished with one loss on the year, dropping their final game of the regular season 14-13 to South Shore Voc-Tech – though Thomas Stanton did keep his touchdown streak alive. The running back has now scored in each of Old Colony's seven games this year.

Blake Dennison also scored once in the loss.

With West Bridgewater entering the MIAA Division 8 South tournament 7-0, the Wildcats earned top-billing, while the Cougars have been seeded at No. 2.

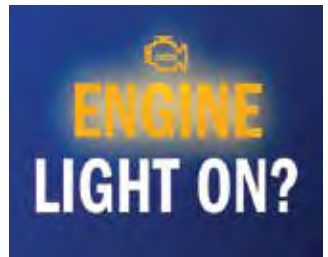

Old Colony will take on No. 7 Upper Cape (4-3), a team the Cougars have already faced this season.

With the Old Colony still holding onto the hopes of finishing the season unbeaten, the Rams nearly knocked off the Cougars on October 19, taking a 16-0 lead in the first half. But Old Colony would respond on offense in the second half and shut out Upper Cape for the remainder of the game, en route to a 23-16 win.

ORR is in a similar situation as its Division 8 neighbors.

The Bulldogs also finished the year 6-1. However, the ultra-competitive MIAA Division 6 South tournament features three unbeaten teams: Cardinal Spellman, Rockland, and Ashland. With those three sitting atop the division, ORR is ranked No. 4 as it enters the tournament, set to face an all too familiar team, though under unique circumstances.

On Friday in the first round, the Bulldogs will face their Thanksgiving Day rivals, who happen to be the fifth seed in Division 6 South, Apponequet. This means the two teams will face off three times this season.

The Lakers (5-2) also happen to be the one team that has knocked off the Bulldogs in 2019. In fact, Apponequet didn't just win the matchup, the Lakers shutout ORR. It was only the second game of the season, and the Bulldogs haven't lost since, whereas Apponequet has lost twice, but this should be a hard-fought game for multiple reasons.

Both Old Colony and Old Rochester Regional volleyball also qualified for the MIAA South Sectional tournaments, as well.

Old Colony will face a team ORR takes on in the South Coast Conference play each year – Fairhaven. Old Colony (16-4) enters the tournament ranked No. 5, and Fairhaven (11-8) is seeded at No. 12.

ORR had a 14-4 record and won the tiebreaker over Apponequet, who was also 14-4. The Bulldogs are seeded fourth and will host the Lakers in the quarterfinals, with both teams received first-round byes.

Luke Butler was Old Colony's top finisher in the MIAA Division 3 Cape and Islands tournament. He was tied for No. 34 in the tournament at Dennis Highlands Golf Course.

Markus Pierre was ORR's leader in the MIAA Division 2 Cape and Islands tournament, which was held at Easton Country Club. He finished No. 23 overall in the tournament.

Tabor Academy

Tabor Academy girls soccer bounced back from a 3-2 loss to Milton Academy with a 5-1 win over Groton School to improve to 8-5 on the season.

Jaydah Bedoya finished with a hat trick and an assist in the win. Cat Barry scored a goal and had an assist, and Bella Garces also scored a goal against Groton School.

Spring meeting. The vote at the October meeting did not necessarily illustrate more support by the Planning Board Town residents in attendance voiced serious concerns about odor and revenue estimates. At previous meetings concerns were also raised about traffic flow, the light emanating from the plant and contaminated irrigation runoff. No Mattapoisett resident stood and showed support for the cultivation of recreational and medical marijuana in Mattapoisett.

Please seriously consider how a marijuana cultivation facility would affect the character of Mattapoisett as a seaside oasis.

Thank you.

Jay Gould, DVM

I'm confused about rabies vaccines for my dog and cat. I hear about 1,2 and 3 year vaccines. Whats the deal?

Talk to your vet about the specifics of their wellness programs, but the Massachusetts law requires that dogs and cats be vaccinated for rabies by 6 months of age. A booster shot should follow in 9 to 12 months. The second shot is good for three years assuming that the vaccine is licensed for 3 years. If the second shot is even a day late over the 12 month period the vaccine is automatically only legal for 1 year. So don't delay after getting a reminder card saying your pet is overdue for shots.

The same law applies to cats but some people prefer 1 year rabies shot in cats as a 3 year vaccines contain a substance that can cause cancer at the vaccination site in a very small percentage of cats. Again, talk to your vet about your preferences.

Sippican Historical Society

In 1998, the Sippican Historical Society commissioned an architectural survey of Marion's historic homes and buildings. The survey was funded half by the Sippican Historical Society and half by the Massachusetts Historical Commission. Due to the limits of funding, not all of the historic buildings were surveyed, but over 100 were catalogued and photographed. The results of the survey are in digital form on the Massachusetts Historical Commission's website and in four binders in the Sippican Historical Society's office (and at the Marion Town Clerk's office).

Marion (Old Rochester) is one of the oldest towns in the United States, and the Sippican Historical Society maintains an extensive collection of documentation on its historic buildings.

The Sippican Historical Society will preview one building a week so that the residents of Marion can understand more about its unique historical architecture.

This installment features 15 Hiller Street. The oldest structure on this thoroughfare may be the former blacksmith shop at 15 Hiller Street. Adapted as a private residence c. 1910-1920, this wooden structure encompassed a stable as well as a blacksmith shop. Rufus S. Briggs operated a blacksmith shop in this building as late as 1903. The current sign on this renovated structure reads "ice house," referring to its usage during the 1930s and 1940s.

SLT Campfire Stories

Sippican Lands Trust will host an evening of "Campfire Stories" on Friday, November 1 starting at 5:30 pm at an old chimney site near Sippican Lands Trust's White Eagle parcel (part of Aucoot Woods) courtesy of the Marion Open Space Acquisition Commission. Invited guests will share a spooky story or two as guests gather around a small campfire in the woods to enjoy the fall evening together. The event will be held only if a killing frost has occurred that reduces the risk of EEE.

Treats and other light refreshments will be available, and the event is free. Sippican Lands Trust encourages guests who are not members of the Sippican Lands Trust to join as members in support of this special event and other walks throughout the year.

White Eagle is located off of Route 6 in Marion. Turn onto Parlowtown Road across from the town cemetery and follow road until you reach the cul-de-sac. Veer left onto the dirt road and follow past an abandoned cranberry bog on your right. The dirt road is bumpy, so please use caution when driving down dirt road. Parking is available directly past the bog and along the dirt roadside. The campfire site is located on the red trail at the old chimney and signs will be there to direct you to the site.

Please dress appropriately for the day's weather and only the worst weather will cancel an SLT event. If the event is canceled, then information will be posted to SLT's website and Facebook page. For directions or further information visit sippicanlandstrust.org or call Sippican Lands Trust at 508-748-3080.

At this point we are still waiting for two frosts - the Board of Health will notify us when the curfew has been lifted. We will send an email out by the 11th to let you know if we will be able to have the games. To get on the Mattapoisett Recreation email list, email: mattrec@mattapoisett.net.

Song and Dance at Tabor Academy

The Tabor Academy Fall Dance Recital is going up in the Fireman Center for Performing Arts in Hoyt Hall (245 Front Street, Marion) on November 7 at 6:30 pm. It is sure to be an interesting show, tying back to the recent town-wide author reading and book signing with Rachel Slade, author of Into the Raging Sea.

Ms. Kimberlee Williams, the Tabor dance coach, took the opportunity to choreograph a company number to honor the 33 crew members lost at sea when their container ship, El Faro, sunk during Hurricane Joaquin. Williams shared, "Choosing to do a piece in the show about the story of 'Into the Raging Sea' by Rachel Slade was an easy choice. Reading the book overwhelmed me in many ways. Getting to know the characters, the laws, the hierarchies, and all of the decisions that lead to the sinking of this massive ship with 33 precious lives on it simply robbed me of sleep at night. I imagined that the outcome would have been different if so many folks had spoken up or if others had listened to those who found the courage to speak up. I chose to put all of that energy of compassion, empathy, and even anger into choreography, as I often do. It's a release for me, honestly. But, I gave the characters in the story the unity and support that they needed to create an ending that our hearts long for reading the book. The piece has so many moving parts that it was one of the most difficult pieces I've put together in my career as a choreographer, but it was worth it to see it all come together. I hope that the audience can feel the spirit of the piece and learn the lessons left for us in this story. It is going to be amazing!" The recital will also include other group, solo, and duet numbers you won't want to miss!

In addition, the Applied Music Students Recital will take place at Tabor on November 11 at 6:30 pm in Lyndon South Auditorium at 242 Front Street, Marion. The students who do music as their afterschool commitment are required to perform a piece they have been practicing all fall, explained Kerry Saltonstall, Director of Communications. "These performances are typically very well done and represent the range of talent in our student community on a range of instruments. Please come out and support our talented musicians on guitar, voice, piano, violin and more!"

Both the dance and music performances are free and open to the public.

Sippican Woman's Club to Visit the Whydah Pirate Museum

"Well, shiver me timbers!" On Friday, November 8 the Sippican Woman's Club will travel to West Yarmouth to experience Cape Cod's newest interactive science museum featuring authentic artifacts from the pirate ship Whydah Gally. In 1717 a violent nor'easter caused the pirate ship, commanded by Sam Bellamy, to run aground, break apart and sink off Wellfleet, taking with her the plunder of 50 ships. Of the 146 men aboard, only 2 survived, making the Whydah the worst maritime event ever on the shores of the Cape.

The remains of the sunken shipwreck and its treasure was not discovered until 1984 by underwater explorer Barry Clifford. The Whydah remains the only authenticated and positively identified pirate ship ever recovered. The contents of this ship represent a unique look into the lives of the pirates, and an unprecedented cross-cultural sampling of treasures from the world of the 18th century. Lunch at a local restaurant follows.

OBITUARIES

Jane E. Carvalho, Esq., 72, passed away peacefully after a long illness on October 19, 2019.

Jane was born and raised in New Bedford before moving to Mattapoisett 20 years ago. She was the daughter of the late Antone Carvalho and Zaida (Pires) Carvalho.

ho.

Jane earned a B.A. at Hood College and a Master's from Brown University, where she was a teaching fellow. She earned a J.D. at Northeastern Law School. She was fluent in several languages and worked as a translator and cryptologist for the FBI, spent several years as an ESL educator and in 1983 passed the bar and became a prominent family law attorney. She began her career at the Law Office of Armand Fernandes, Jr. before opening a private practice in 1987 with offices in Boston, New Bedford and Martha's Vineyard. She served on the Board of Directors for SMLAC and the Interchurch Council. She was a member of the Board of Bar Overseers Hearing Committee and a past President of the Massachusetts Bar Association Family Law Section Council. She was a frequent lecturer for MCLE, Northeastern University and UMass Law. She devoted her life to championing the underdog. Jane enjoyed hiking, biking, camping, being at the ocean and the outdoors in general. Most of all, she had a special place in her heart for animals, having rescued hundreds over the years. Jane was a longtime member of the Pentecostal Assembly in New Bedford and traveled to India for mission work. She was a devoted Christian and her faith comforted her through her illness. She was a one-of-a-kind woman, a trail blazer and an exceptionally hard worker. She will be deeply missed by her family and the friends, colleagues, children and clients whose lives she touched.

She is survived by her cousins, Paul, Deborah, Marsha and Tim Pires, her Aunt Rose Pires, and her friend, Donna Horrocks, who was her caregiver in her last years. She was "Auntie Jane" to Billy, Nicholas and Faith Horrocks and thought of Donna's husband, Bill, as her brother. She had a hand in raising two fine human beings, Matthew Costa and Brittany Costa, who were her stepchildren.

Per Jane's wishes, private funeral arrangements entrusted to Donaghy-Hathaway Funeral Home, New Bedford.

Donations in Jane's memory may be made to a "No Kill" animal shelter of your choice or simply practice a random act of kindness in Jane's honor.

Barbara Goodwin Hill of Marion, MA devoted wife, mother, grandmother, great grandmother and friend to all passed away peacefully on October 23rd, 2019.

Barbara is preceded in death by her husband John A. Hill, Jr. and two children Gregory Hill and Nancy Hill McLachlan. She is survived by five children John A. Hill, III and his wife Ann of Milton, MA;

Martha Horan and her husband Thomas of Dracut, MA; Betsey Christiansen and her husband Terrance of Marion, MA; David Hill and his wife Germaine of Black Mountain, NC; Jennifer Armbricht and her deceased husband Ken of Panama City, FL; and son-in-law, Gordon McLachlan of Bow, NH; 11 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

Barbara was born on August 22, 1919 in Lowell Massachusetts to William and Eva Goodwin.

She grew up in Chelmsford, MA and graduated from Chelmsford High in 1937. She graduated from Emerson College in 1942. She went on to teach at Oak Grove School in Vassalboro, Maine and became the Director of Speech and Drama.

In 1943 Barbara married her high school sweet heart John and began raising her large family.

All who knew Barbara will never forget her dramatic style, her melodic voice, and her charm. She loved sewing, cooking, watching sports especially the Red Sox and the Patriots. In her 100 years of life Barbara witnessed incredible changes in the world. She kept active in her children's and grandchildren's lives and stayed up with current trends and events by reading avidly, and often engaging in intellectual discussions with her family and friends. She had a great sense of humor and a love of life.

Now she is at peace and will always be deeply loved by all whose lives she touched.

A memorial service will be held at Oakland Cemetery in Dracut, MA on Saturday, November 2nd at 11:30 am followed by a celebration of life luncheon. In lieu of flowers an unsolicited act of kindness for someone in need would honor Barbara's memory. For online guestbook, please visit www.saundersdwyer.com.

following. Over 250 athletes from all over the South Coast, accompanied by their families and teachers, are joining Tabor Academy students for a day of unified sports. This is the fourth year for this event, which kicks off a year of effort by Tabor Academy student volunteers on behalf of Special Olympics MA.

The student Special Olympics Club helps to arrange all the logistics for this morning of service, which includes opening and closing ceremonies replete with a cheering gauntlet for the athletes to run through when they are done. In addition to the School Day Games event, the club also does a fundraising campaign culminating in their annual Polar Plunge at Silvershell Beach which will take place on December 15 this winter (all are welcome to join in support), a winter young athletes program on Sunday mornings from December through February, a basketball tournament, and completes the year's effort with an awareness campaign to eliminate the use of the "R" word. "Our partnership with Special Olympics Massachusetts has been terrific. The students have created opportunities to engage in athletic competition with members of our local community, but better than that we've created meaningful relationships with so many of the athletes," said Tim Cleary, Dean of Students and faculty advisor to the Special Olympics Club at Tabor.

Kerry Saltonstall, Director of Communications said, "All are welcome to join the fun at the Polar Plunge on December 15 at 11:15 am at Silvershell Beach in Marion. Save the date to plunge or just watch the action! The students are hoping to raise $12,000 this year in support of their friends at Special Olympics MA."

On Wednesday, October 23 the Marion Natural History Museum's afterschool group went on a fall nature walk looking for signs of fall. One lucky student found an owl pellet under a tree! We were able to find burrows, nests, and even a small snake hiding under a log. We observed the different colors of the leaves of trees and shrubs and looked for mushrooms. It was great to spend such a beautiful fall day with these inquisitive kids! Many thanks to Tabor Academy for sending their student volunteers to help us enjoy our walk. MOVIE REVIEW

Comeback King

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

Dolemite Is My Name.* Starring Eddie Murphy and Wesley Snipes. Directed by Craig Brewer. Running time: 118 minutes. MPAA rating: R. Now streaming on Netflix.

Eddie Murphy has been in movies for thirty-seven years, but Dolemite Is My Name is the first time he has played a real-life person — Rudy Ray Moore, the self-described “ghetto expressionist” who rose up by making records and then movies that turned the African-American urban experience into ribald slapstick. Moore was already 48 years old when his first movie, Dolemite, was released in 1975; it helped expand his cult, which has survived his death, in 2008, at age 81. Dolemite Is My Name celebrates Moore as a hustler and an anti-mainstream artist; it fits right in with the screenwriters Scott Alexander and Larry Karaszewski’s previous films (Ed Wood, The People Vs. Larry Flynt, Man on the Moon, Big Eyes).

Murphy brings not only his still razor-sharp comedic instincts but a certain gravitas, a whiff of defeat, to his performance. The stakes seem higher, the obstacles to success taller, than in those other weird-show-biz biopics. Moore is a black man pushing fifty; in the words of Marsellus Wallace in Pulp Fiction, “If you were gonna make it, you woulda made it before now.” Murphy plays Moore as if hearing those words on repeat in his head. There’s desperation under his confidence, and a hot drive to surpass his abusive, belittling father. Perhaps Murphy, 58, needed some years under his belt, some failures and humbling, before he could play Moore with truth and honor. (The character of Dolemite is a different story; Reggie Hammond, Axel Foley, and many other Murphy heroes were essentially slimmer, sleeker Dolemites.)

Directed by Craig Brewer (who’s also helming Murphy’s Coming to America sequel), Dolemite Is My Name settles, in its second half, into a tongue-in-cheek, half-irreverent making-of-Dolemite comedy. It doesn’t make the mistake of holding up Dolemite as any kind of art. Watch the 1975 film again and you’ll see it transcends its amateurishness with its eagerness to please — piled high with sex and violence, it comes close to being a “good parts only” guilty pleasure. Yet it also stops dead so that Dolemite can unspool one of his rhyming stories, the progenitors of hip-hop, for an audience of appreciative street dudes (and later in his nightclub). The sense we get from the new biopic is that Dolemite may not be everyone’s idea of art, but it is pure expression. Moore took inspiration from the signifying of winos and junkies, put his own spin on it, and delivered it to those who laughed at its familiarity and those just discovering it. It is, in its way, art.

The biopic stays bright and colorful despite its structure of ups and downs — Moore and his crew work hard, sweat, and improvise to get that damn film in the can. Murphy is surrounded by ringers like Craig Robinson, Keegan-Michael Key, Da’Vine Joy Randolph, and especially Wesley Snipes, as Dolemite’s director and onscreen villain D’Urville Martin, pretty much the only participant with any Hollywood experience. Snipes is to this movie what Burt Reynolds was to Boogie Nights; he brings all his film roles and all our knowledge of his offscreen foibles to his portrait of a jaded Tinseltown satellite (dining out on having played an elevator operator in Rosemary’s Baby) who offers hope to a despairing Moore at one point. Watching Snipes up there with Murphy carries levels of associations and memories, mostly warm. At this point, both men, once kings, seem to have passed through ego into human-scaled consciousness.

As in Ed Wood, the hero here gathers a group of misfits around him to achieve the common goal of a Z-budget flick. Moore works with blacks, whites, gays, Jews, and of course women to realize his dream — the movie is good-hearted, though it sort of underplays Dolemite’s casual misogyny (at one point in the 1975 film Dolemite deals his lover a couple quick slaps before resuming coitus). You could watch Dolemite Is My Name and miss that Dolemite is a pimp; the women in Dolemite are there to act as Dolemite’s kung-fu enforcers, but they’re also there to show their merchandise. Once again, an Alexander/Karaszewski script softens some of the reality (don’t think too hard about how D’Urville Martin is played as somewhat gay and the never-married Moore, about whom rumors have flown in recent years, isn’t). But generally this is a convivial and compassionate tribute to creation by any means necessary.

In fact, Gorey (1925-2000) was more than an influential author, illustrator, and book artist - he remains one of the foremost creators of nonsense literature. On Sunday, November 17 from 2:00 pm to 3:00 pm the Mattapoissett Free Public Library will host Gregory Hischak, curator of the Edward Gorey House in Yarmouth Port, to discuss Gorey's extraordinarily productive broad career as well as his cultural influence on design, fashion, film, and literature. Hischak will also cover Gorey's nonsense works, originating in traditions established by Edward Lear and Lewis Carroll, that evolved into a body of literature that remains whimsical, fantastical, and startlingly contemporary.

This fundraiser is important to the Humane Society and Shelter-South Coast's mission because only 4.5 percent of the operating costs come from municipal grants. The remaining 95.5 percent comes from charitable donations, endowments, adoptions and fundraising events such as this one. The Humane Society and Shelter could never survive without the public's support, all of which helps us on a day-to-day basis. This Gala event is not only a fundraiser to pay for the shelter's operating costs, it is also a huge thank you on behalf of the shelter animals, the people who care for them and to the hundreds of other individuals from our SouthCoast area and beyond, who adopt, donate, volunteer and contribute to this event, so that our animals can go on to living their lives in happy and loving homes. The Gala also promises to be a good start to the Holiday shopping season and a great way to

SALOME'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It might not be wise to pursue goals involving others, unless you can stop impulsively rejecting new ideas. Either open your mind or wait until next week, when this "ornery" mood passes.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time for the Bovine to be creative and practical for yourself and your surroundings. Shop wisely, not impulsively, and keep your Bull's eye focused on quality, not quantity.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You should feel more confident about moving ahead with plans that had to be delayed by an unexpected turn of events. Also, family matters might need more time than first anticipated.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Be considerate of others as you move into a new area in your professional life. Take time to meet people and discuss mutual goals. The more you get to know each other, the better.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Creating a fuss could get your ideas noticed quickly. But it would be best to present your case, and then wait for a reaction to follow in due course, rather than try to force it to happen.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Unkept promises might cause plans to go awry this week. You can either grumble about people "letting you down" or find a way to make the best of it and move on. The choice is yours.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Putting off making a commitment early in the week could be a good move. It's best to act when you know you're making an informed decision. Expect more facts to emerge by the week's end.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A recent act of kindness on your part could take on special meaning this week. Also, look for signs of upcoming changes in both your personal and professional relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Many of the tougher communication barriers between you and others in the workplace or at home could begin breaking down this week. Expect some surprises to emerge.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your "tough love" attitude toward someone you care for could be misunderstood. Try to be less judgmental and show more consideration in the way you relate to that person.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An unexpected workplace challenge could be daunting. But take what you know (and you know more than you realize) and apply it to the problem, and you should see positive results.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Recent relationship changes for both single and paired Pisces continue to influence much of your week. Keep your focus on developing the positive aspects as you move along.

BORN THIS WEEK: You set your goals with assurance and influence others to follow suit. You would be an excellent philosopher and teacher.

AARP Survey Form Mailed to Marion Residents

Through an application by the Marion Council on Aging and the Friends of the Marion Council on Aging, the Town was recently awarded the designation as an Age-Friendly Community in the AARP Network of Age-Friendly States and Communities and the World Health Organization Global Network of Communities. As a member of this network, the Town of Marion benefits from shared experiences of member communities and has access to extensive resources and support available from AARP, including grant monies for age-friendly initiatives.

Responses to the survey by Marion residents age 55 and older will assist in gathering feedback to assess current and future needs of older adults in our community. The Town can then evaluate where it should focus its effort and resources in developing an action plan to improve the quality of life for older adults in our community and make Marion an even more livable community for all ages.

Calling all runners! (Walkers are allowed to participate in the 5K only.) While running in one of the most beautiful towns around, runners can also raise money for BBAHFH's 1st Habitat home in Mattapoissett.

If runners have not already signed up for one of the most beautiful scenic races around, when they register for the race at www.mproadraces.com and add "HABITAT2019" as a promo code, BBAHFH will receive $5 of the registration fee to help make a local family's dream of home ownership come true. All proceeds will go toward the Mattapoissett home build.

The Mattapoissett Road Race is a 10-mile and 5K race, or runners may do both and make it a half marathon. The race starts at the Mattapoissett wharf, and is on Saturday, November 9, with start times at 9:00 am for the 5K, and 10:15 am for the 10-mile race.

Once a runner has signed up for the race, please email BuzzardsBayAreaHabitat@yahoo.com to let it know you have become a supporter of their upcoming build! BBAHFH is excited to have you on its team.

Buzzards Bay Area Habitat for Humanity's mission is to bring people together to build homes, communities, and hope. Habitat homes are built with a community of kindness. Please become part of their vision where everyone has a decent place to live.

Owning a home has the potential to break the cycle of poverty for low-income families, especially for the next generation. By obtaining a home, the family has healthier surroundings that enable the whole family's health to improve, both mentally and physically. With a greater sense of stability, children often make better grades and stay in school longer. Some further their education and grow in their careers because they have gained confidence and responsibility of owning a home. A new cycle begins, and it all starts at home. Low-income working families need affordable housing to provide a healthy, stable environment for their family.

Buzzards Bay Area Habitat for Humanity is a charitable 501(c)(3) organization, and its homes are supported by donations. Habitat's financial resources are limited. They rely upon gifts of land, discounted properties, and donations to ensure the affordability of

On Saturday, November 2, at 7:30 pm, Russian-American violinist Yevgeny Kutik, returns as soloist with the NBSO in "Prokofiev Rules," an evening of musical fireworks dedicated to the composer. Kutik will perform both Prokofiev's Violin Concerto No. 1 and Violin Concerto No. 2—two virtuosic pieces that create opposite sound worlds. The concert also features the world premiere of a newly commissioned narrative for a timeless classic, Peter and the Wolf Reimagined, written and narrated by James VanDemark, and a suite from the stirring ballet Romeo and Juliet. Dinur will present a pre-concert talk on the program at 6:30 pm in the Penler Space (adjoining The Z), free and open to the public.

On Sunday, November 3, at 2:30 pm, Dinur and the NBSO present "Peter and the Wolf Family Concert," an exciting musical experience featuring Magic Circle Mime Company, live narration, and terrific surprises. Magic Circle Mime Company has performed their highly acclaimed show with nearly every major North American orchestra and is regarded as one of today's premier family attractions with performances that blend the concert orchestra with visual theater. This concert with its tale of wild animals brought to life by the orchestra's

HAPPY HALLOWEEN!

This year's program will consist of approximately 14 weekly sessions. The registration fee is $380 for the entire season, payable to Hockey Unlimited (at least half payable in advance). The money covers ice rental expenses and all other operating costs.

Sessions are expected to be held primarily on Saturday mornings. The program runs approximately from early November through February 2020. A complete schedule with exact dates and times will be available upon registration. Because of program limitations, registration is on a "first come, first served" basis.

Each player must be equipped with a stick, knee pads, hockey gloves, elbow pads, helmet and face guard. Some type of tooth protection and hockey pants are also strongly recommended.

To obtain an application or for more information, call Jim Hutchinson at (508) 944-4367 or email at jhutchinson77@comcast.net.
